The Way Things Are

It's today
The road
The knowing the road is there
A few brambles
A few tangles
A few scratches
A rough stone against your lot
But still, you've got to go
And take it
Fast sometimes
Or slow
But go everywhere anywhere you need to go

The new, cost-seventy-eight class tee-shirt and button represent the immense school spirit inherent in the fourteenth graduating class of George Washington High School. They also symbolize the maturity of the class in a sophisticated manner.

The time has come when we must go our separate ways. It is a time of parting, of goodbyes and most of all for reflection. And remembrances of things past seem to pervade my waking hours.

For three years we were as one. You generously shared your moments of glory with me and graciously accepted occasional sharp critiques, knowing they were proffered with concern and even affection. There were times of sadness but they were far outweighed by the joys of camaraderie, the happiness of sharing and the pride which came from mutual respect.

You have earned my respect. I trust I have been deserving of yours. What more is there to say but that it has been good, VERY GOOD. Thank you, each of you! Please keep in touch.

For the last time

President

It's over ... yes, it's finally over

But in our wake we have built such pride, unity and respect that it is difficult to just say farewell. We left our building alive. We created a mood which could not be broken. We went through tough times as well as joyous times. We've been through a lot together but no matter how tough the endeavor, we worked as one. We showed the administration, teachers, parents and community that in a world where you often hear the worst about youth, where the good things get little notice, our positive performance was unaltered.

But now we must part. We must carry what we have learned into the world with us. No matter which direction life may take you, strive to achieve perfection. I wish you all great success. These times together I shall never forget.

But now it's over ... yes, it's finally over

Sincerely,

Roger Price

Junior Skating Party

In keeping with the success of "Fox in the Hat" party, we were the first class to have a skating party. It truly paid off. As a result of its success we will have skating parties the following year. They were held at Cornwell Heights and the "Fox in the Hat" was outstanding as well.

On June 17, 1976 at 12:00 noon, we boarded the fourteen buses headed for Great Adventure. We enjoyed a beautiful afternoon at the Safari and Entertainment Park of Great Adventure. Even though we were the first class to spend our Sophomore Picnic at Great Adventure, the turnout was tremendous and will set a trend for future classes.

Presents for St. Christopher's

During the holiday season of our sophomore year the class of "78" took upon their shoulders the rewarding task of buying Christmas and Chanukah gifts for the children of St. Christopher's Hospital. In anticipation, many students got involved and succeeded in collecting a large amount of money. Armed with presents, best wishes, and Santa in the lead, the Class of "78" brought the spirit of Christmas to St. Christopher's Children's Hospital.

Move-Up Day

June 9, 1977

The first of these is the fact that the system is not self-sufficient. It is dependent on the external world for its raw materials and for the energy which it needs to operate. This is a serious disadvantage, especially in the case of a system which is designed to operate in a hostile environment.
 The second disadvantage is that the system is not very flexible. It is designed to perform a specific task, and it is not easy to modify it to perform a different task. This is a serious disadvantage, especially in the case of a system which is designed to operate in a changing environment.

78

Our long and satisfying journey towards our goal has finally been reached. The Class of '78', with the leadership of Harry J Brown, Roger Price, and the total cooperation of the entire class has set a new standard for the forthcoming classes to emulate. Old standards have been raised to new heights that have previously been unreachable by other classes. Our accomplishments have proven to the faculty, believers and skeptics alike, that our class was a truly unique group of individuals.

The confines of our school have never limited the possibilities that stretch out over our horizon. We have as a class contributed to the community in a variety of gratifying and helpful ways. The community will remember us as being that special class on their way up.

New adventures unravel before us as we all go our separate ways, yet that special Class of '78' togetherness will never die. Take it light and make the best of the future.

The Colonial Chapter of the National Honor Society is dedicated to scholarship, service, leadership and character. In order for an individual student to become a member of the society, he or she must be either a junior or a senior, have at least a 95 weighted average from all classes, and be involved in both school and community related activities. Members of the Honor Society, in turn, serve the school by providing tutoring services to any student needing help in an academic subject.

The annual installation of new members is the focal point of any H.S. Society year. This year on November 1st, a pledge was taken by both new and old members alike to uphold the standards of the National Honor Society in front of faculty, parents, and local officials.

Rolling Hill Hospital is a paramedical program offered to students disillusioned with the conventional high school system. Thirty students spend their entire day at the hospital, the first half working around the hospital, such as physical therapy aides, operating room technicians or in the psychology department under professional supervision. The second half of the day is spent in a classroom located in the hospital, where their instructor, Ron Sixerman, teaches the standard high school subjects.

Field Hockey

Field Hockey is a game of skill and precision combined with stamina, drive, and the desire to win. Each member of this year's team possessed these qualities, making the 1977-78 hockey season exciting and unique. Coached by Miss Dorothy Walton and Miss Carol Griffin, the team displayed more combined talent and ability than any other team ever to play on the hockey fields of George Washington. The team, led by co-captains Lisa Santerian and Janice McGill, was comprised primarily of seniors. They carry off the field an unforgettable experience along with many unforgettable memories of a fine season.

Volleyball, an active and exhilarating sport, combines coordination, agility, and teamwork to produce a winning team. The 1977-78 Volleyball Team, under the superb coaching of Miss Karyn Kelly, is an example of such a winning team. As they graduate, they take with them the meaningful satisfaction of experiencing victory as well as defeat.

Cross Country is a hard and grueling sport which requires endurance and stamina. Although the team lost a few valuable members last year, with hard work and the clever coaching of Mr. John "Duke" Donahue, they triumphed in another successful season. Co-captains Ed Duffy, Jim Hopf, Bill Lewis, and Walt Marchewski deserve a great deal of credit for their fine leadership. This year's team graduates knowing they have preserved Washington's winning tradition.

Thoughts of Life

Life is made up of ever so many partings welded together

Dickens

True friendship is a plant of slow growth and must undergo and withstand the shocks of adversity before it is entitled to the appellation

Washington

If you do not think about the future, you cannot have one

John Galsworthy

Be not afraid of life. Believe that life is worth living, and your belief will help create the fact

William James

The future is a world limited by ourselves, in it we discover only what concerns us and, sometimes, by chance, what interests those whom we love the most

Maurice Maeterlinck

The school is not the end but only the beginning of an education

Coolidge

Wear your learning like your watch, in a private pocket and do not pull it out and strike it merely to show that you have one

Chesterfield

Noone means all he says, and yet very few say all they mean, for words are slippery and thought is viscous

Henry Brooks Adams

What lies behind us and what lies before us are tiny matters compared to what lies within us

Emerson

Friendship, one soul in two bodies

Pythagoras

Be glad of life because it gives you the chance to love and to work and to play and to look up at the stars

Henry Van Dyke

It does not take much strength to do things, but it requires great strength to decide on what to do

Elbert Hubbard

May you live all the days of your life

Swift

Nothing in life is to be feared. It is only to be understood

Marie Curie

Loveliness that dies when I forget comes alive when I remember

Hilda Conkling

Life is just one damned thing after another

E. W. O'Malley

It is not true that life is one damn thing after another. It's one damn thing over and over

Edna St. Vincent Millay

Life is my college. May I graduate well, and earn some honors!

Louisa May Alcott

The nice thing about memories is that they never spoil no matter how long you keep them

Ziggy

Silence is the science of the times that stay. And yet we use whole paragraphs to say what saying nothing could have spoken better

Rud. McKuen

Life is a flame that is always burning itself out, but it catches fire again every time a child is born

G. B. Shaw

Who so neglects learning in his youth, loses the past and is dead for the future

Euripides

Chaos often breeds life, when order breeds habit

Henry Brooks Adams

Do what you will, this life's a fiction, and is made up of contradiction

Blake

A great part of the happiness of life consists not in fighting battles, but in avoiding them. A masterly retreat is in itself a victory

Longfellow

Our friends see the best in us, and by that very fact call forth the best from us

Black

When friendships are real, they are not glass threads or frost work, but the solidist things we can know

Emerson

A friend may well be reckoned the masterpiece of nature

Emerson

Life is a preparation for the future, and the best preparation for the future is to live as if there were none

Elbert Hubbard

Remember that life is not measured in hours, but in accomplishments

True friendship is a precious gift
That's wonderful and rare
It's knowing someone understands
And takes the time to care
A friend will always listen
When you voice your hopes and fears
For friends can share the good and bad
The laughter and the tears
And as the days & years go by A true friend will be part of all the precious memories
You treasure in your heart

Life is just a jig-saw, we piece it bit by bit — into a lovely picture — every tiny part must fit — each little jagged fragment odd and strange though it may seem — is necessary when we try to puzzle out the scheme . . . The sunny days, the dark days, and the hours of deep distress, the times of sorrow and despair and joy and happiness — all go to make the picture — it's not easy, I'll admit — It all looks senseless sometimes and the parts don't seem to fit — but just have faith, keep trying, and you'll see the plan unroll — for everything fits in its place — to make the perfect whole

Tenth grade was the year when we realized that our graduation really would come someday. It's strange thinking back to that morning in assembly. It was one of the first times that Mr. Brown had greeted us with his now familiar "Good Morning. It is now eight o'clock. May I please have the attention of the class of Nineteen Seventy-eight?" He went on that day however, that in two years we would be sitting in those seats for the last time. Two Years! That seemed like such a long time then, but soon we began to see that graduation day was not far off.

Late in November of our sophomore year, our class sponsored its first football game. The big day came! Our faces were red with excitement (or maybe it was the beginning of frostbite). We were so filled with talent that we smashed Frankford Thirty-two to nothing and picked up a Junior Varsity division championship. All of the players on this winning team were Sophomores, proving to all of Washington the worth of our class.

A Song

None knows the day that friends must part
 None knows how near is sorrow
 If there be laughter in your heart,
 Don't hold it for to-morrow
 Smile all the smiles you can to day
 Grief waits for all along the way
 Today is ours for joy and mirth
 We may be sad to-morrow
 Then let us sing for all we're worth,
 Nor give a thought of sorrow
 None knows what lies along the way
 Let's smile what smiles we can today
 Edgar A. Guest

 Is like the child's adversity
 Whose vista is a hill
 Behind the hill is sorcery
 And everything unknown
 But will the secret compensate

We proved ourselves in other ways that year too. Just before Christmas and Chanukah, we decided to get presents for the children who were forced to spend their holiday in St. Christopher's Children's Hospital. When we collected the money, we didn't take our time about it. I remember sitting in the auditorium as classmates ran up and down the aisles carrying buckets, bowls, hats, and bags. As each container became filled with money, it was rushed to the stage where its contents were dumped and volunteer counters quickly totaled the piles. The amount of money collected was much more than was expected. The children were enchanted with Harry Litt as Santa Claus. The presents and fun of the day brought the children of St. Christopher's a very happy holiday, with best wishes from the Class of '78.

One of our more entertaining Sophomore activities was a roller skating party at Cornwells Heights Roller Skating Rink. Most of us didn't have our drivers' licenses when the evening of the party rolled around, so those people who were capable of driving traveled with packed cars. Even though the cars were filled to capacity there was no assurance that anyone knew the directions, and many of us got lost on the way. So much for the great minds of '78. When I finally walked in the building, all I saw were faces eating, talking, laughing, and going round and round and round. I wanted to join them right away. So I rushed over to the counter, checked my shoes, retrieved my skates, and after ten minutes of lacing them on, I stood up. Wham! I was on the floor again. I forgot that I hadn't been on skates since I was six years old. From my position on the ground, I could see that many friends and classmates were no more sure of themselves than I was. With mutual cooperation, however, we eventually got to our feet and walked skated our way to the rink. There we merged with the other skaters and also went round and round and round.

The Nature of Friendship

The quality of friendship, unlike that of mercy, is continually being strained. But it is the essence of friendship that it can stand the strain. Friendship is like love at its best, not blind but sympathetically all seeing, a support which does not wait for understanding, an act of faith which does not need, but always has, reason.

We are on the threshold of a new and unprecedented era in the annals of mankind. Nations of every size, long under foreign rule, some with ancient cultures, others primitive for centuries, are casting off the yoke and grasping independence. It was sometime in May of that year, when the date of our last event as sophomores was announced. On June 17, 1976, we were going to Great Adventure Amusement Park in Jackson New Jersey for our sophomore class trip. We all hurried to pay our twelve dollars and insure a place on a bus, hopefully near our friends.

When the day arrived, the expressions on our faces were hardly those of joy and excitement. Instead, over five hundred students spent first through fifth period staring glumly out of classroom windows. It was going to rain! We'd been planning on the weather to be beautiful for this trip and when we were just about to go, the skies hung gray and heavy, and rain seemed certain. In spite of the weather, when the bell rang at 12:00 we poured eagerly out of school, quickly filling the fourteen buses which waited for us in front of the building. As soon as we boarded the buses, and even before they had left the parking lot we began to sing, cheer, and became altogether rowdy. I wonder what an observer might have thought, seeing a caravan of fourteen buses traveling down the highway and hearing non-stop singing from within. If anyone didn't know our football cheer "Hail to the Eagles" before the trip, he was sure to know it by the end.

When we arrived at 2:00, our first destination was the Safari Park. There we had the opportunity to view all species of animals from bears to llamas and every variation in between. Each was in its natural habitat and because it was mating season, we had the opportunity to view the animals participating in some strange, but entirely natural, activities. Most of the animals were obvious to our fourteen buses full of people, hundreds of people ride through their domain every day. The baboons, however, were not so tolerant of us. I remember sitting in my seat minding my own business when someone yelled, "Hey, there's a baboon climbing on our bus!" I looked and saw that it was true. Not only was there a baboon on our bus, there were baboons climbing up the sides of some of the other buses, also. We were lucky, though. One visitor to the Park had failed to heed the warnings posted around the entrance and had ventured fearlessly through the Safari Park in his car with the vinyl roof. A baboon found it extremely delicious and the man was last seen being led away gently and murmuring, "Aw my new roof. . . please baboon, what did I ever do to you? . . . I always liked King Kong."

After leaving the animals, we entered the Entertainment Park. There we were told that we could spend the next few hours where we liked, doing what we liked, within reason, of course. There was only one drawback. Mr. Brown threatened that if we were not back on the buses by 8:45 p.m. precisely, he would take away our senior year. He was only kidding (I think), but everyone made sure to be back at the buses on time, just in case.

There were many ways to spend our time in the Park, but of course everyone wanted to go on the famous rides. It was when we lined up for these that we found the weather to be in our favor. Because rain was predicted and expected at any time, anyone with sense would not go to an outdoor amusement park that day.

where in between. Oh yes — a few of us were at the food. Let me be a little more exact. About four hundred ninety-eight of us were gobbling down pizzas, hotdogs, ice cream cones, popcorn, and fried-chicken legs. In short, we were eating anything that didn't wriggle too much when we held it.

At twenty minutes to eight, an announcement came booming over the loudspeaker. It was Mrs. Steinberg saying that the Class of '78' had better be on the buses in five minutes or else. Everyone stopped whatever he was doing and ran for the buses. I've never seen so many people move so fast. The six-million dollar man would have been trampled in the rush. On the ride home, we sang, laughed, switched seats constantly, and really had a wonderful time, which was a fitting end to a wonderful day.

The Class of '78' is not noted for its good sense, however, and for our courageous act, (that of going despite the probability of rain) we were rewarded by having the Park virtually to ourselves with not a drop of rain all day.

Great Adventure is reknowned for its many exciting rides and with our five hundred representatives, I think that the Class of '78' must have gotten to each one at least once. We did have our favorites, though, and the log flume topped the list. Everyone went on that one, many of us five or six times. On the flume we sometimes had water fights, sometimes hung on for our lives, sometimes said witty things like, "Look Ma, no hands!", and always came away soaked. The roller coaster was another favorite, although not for Mrs. Steinberg. She was so white that five hundred sophomores crowded around her expecting a heart attack. It never happened, though. Good old Mrs. Steinberg bounced right back and headed for the largest ferris wheel in the world.

Besides the rides, there were many other activities going on in the Entertainment Park. Sophomores could be seen in the arena near the flume listening to singer Maureen McGovern, at the other side of the Park watching a water show featuring diving dolphins, and every-

Science and the Future

Freedom to Be Yourself

I believe in freedom, in man's right to be himself, to assert himself and to fight all those who try to prevent him from being himself. But freedom is more than the absence of violent oppression. It is more than "freedom from." It is "freedom to" the freedom to be much rather than to have much, or to use things and people.

Sometimes a friend is like a favorite book,
Knowing every thought and word and look
And yet you like him handy on the shelf,
Because, somehow he warms your deeper self
He may not hold the thrill that others do,
But just because he's genuine and true,
Like some fine masterpiece beyond compare,
When the rest are gone, He'll be there
Yes, friends are a lot like favorite books,
They don't depend upon their fame or looks
It's what's inside their deeper basic worth
That makes us hold some friends the best on earth

One of our best moves as Sophomores was the choosing of our class button. A contest was held and from among fourteen entries, the design by Michael Rosenbaum was selected as winner. It depicted a clown being lifted into the air by balloons accompanied by the slogan "On our way up." A seventy-eighter will never be lost in a crowd because of this unique button. Of course, if he's in a crowd of seventy-eighters, that's a different story.

The summer came and went, and we trudged back into school in September, we found that something must have happened: we were Juniors!

We started off the year with a repeat performance of the previous year. We had our second roller skating party. It was similar in most respects to its predecessor except we were much more steady on our feet having had practice. Everything was going smoothly when I heard a cry of "Catch that wheel!" It was Sherry Bernstein. She had been skating nonchalantly when one of the wheels from her skates decided to so on. The runaway wheel was quickly apprehended, restored to its proper place, and severely reprimanded. Luckily, that was the only mishap, and the rest of the evening progressed as scheduled.

For the first few weeks of our junior year it looked as if we were just recycling our sophomore year. We still had Mr. Brown and Roger, a junior skating party and we had our Junior Day football game. Like the year before, we won. This time Washington clobbered Olney nineteen to six.

It's difficult to remember the first few hours of our Junior Class Trip. All I can think of is rising before the sun, dragging my body to school, and shivering. There was a lot of shivering. We all comforted each other by saying that when the sun came out it would get warmer. It didn't. We did have the chance to thaw a little on the buses. We had been told to be at school promptly at 7:00 a.m., but it seems that no one had informed the chaperones. When all of them finally arrived, we departed, a long forty-five minutes later. Of course, that delay added to our four-hour journey, causing us to arrive in Washington D.C. sometime around noon. This bus ride was a lot quieter than the one to Girl I Adventure because one except the bus drivers (and I'm not too sure about them) was sleeping.

Before seeing any sights, we stopped to acquire our tour guides. They all resembled Mary Poppins because of the umbrellas which they carried. No, it wasn't raining. Then the guides informed us that the umbrellas were their marks of distinction, so that we would not get separated. I thought that they were joking. We were eleventh graders, did they really think that we'd get lost? I changed my mind when I saw how many times I needed to find my Mary Poppins.

Our big day included walking in and then shortly out of nearly every building in Washington. Our schedule was so hectic that after every two or three stops we were permitted to breathe.

What is a Friend

What is friend? I will tell you. It is a person with whom you dare to be yourself. Your soul can be naked with him. He seems to ask of you to put on nothing, only to be what you are. He does not want you to be better or worse. When you are with him, you feel as a prisoner feels who has been declared innocent. You do not have to be on your guard. You can say what you think, so long as it is genuinely in your nature that lead others to misjudge you. With him you breathe freely. You can avow your vanities and envies and hates and vicious sparks, your meanness and absurdities.

and, in opening them up to him, they are lost, dissolved on the white ocean of him loyalty. He understands. You do not have to be careful. You can abuse him, neglect him, tolerate him. Best of all, you can keep still with him. It makes no matter. He likes you — He is like fire that purges to the bone. He understands. You can weep with him, son with him, laugh with him, pray with him. He sees, knows, and loves you. A friend? What is a friend? With whom you dare to be yourself.

Outside of the Smithsonian was a group of Hare Krishna devotees trying to raise money by selling carnations. We fought for the red and white ones, but ended up with the pink leftovers and the spiritual pamphlets. They tormented us and provoked us until we all had at least one flower. We looked like a bunch of flower children rather than the sophisticated Juniors we were.

After eating our packed lunches in the cafeteria of the Smithsonian, we went to the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts. This building was magnificent with its new chandeliers, red carpeting and basically luxurious surroundings. When we saw the Hundreds of flags from around the world, we tried to determine what nation each one was from. Then we were herded into the buses again and it was off to the Capitol building. When we arrived, we saw what looked to me to be a giant unfinished puzzle, its pieces scattered all around the grounds. The confusion was because a platform was being built in front of the Capitol building for the coming inauguration of good ol' Jimmy.

Our next destination was the cemetery! Winding through the roadway of Arlington cemetery, all I could see were green hills spotted with white tombstones. At the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier, the guard walked mechanically, not even flinching when the brisk wind blew. If we were freezing then he must have been an icicle because he had been out there pacing for four hours without even an overcoat. After the changing of the guards, we watched solemnly as Roger and Mr. Brown placed a wreath on the tomb for our class. Before leaving Arlington, we stopped at the eternal flame, which was kindled in memory of John and Robert Kennedy. Then we walked and walked and walked in the bitter cold down it to our buses.

The next stop on the agenda was the Lincoln Memorial. We were there long enough to go all the way up the steps, just in time to find out that we had to go all of the way back down.

Hogates was our last and final stop before George Washington High School. There, we sat in small intimate groups of ten and rapidly ate our turkey dinners. After dinner there was a hectic scramble for the bathrooms. Mr. Brown directed traffic. The girls were given only thirty five seconds apiece. Although, ninety-eight people were allowed in at one time I didn't get in at all.

The bus ride home was totally uneventful until someone yelled "Let's see how many people we can fit in the bathroom!" With much pushing and shoving we managed to stuff ten people inside. Then, everyone took a deep breath and number eleven was squeezed into the two foot by two foot space. We were pried out with crowbars. The bathroom will never be the same again. At 11:00 our caravan finally returned to school. Five hundred exhausted, yawning Juniors filed into the cars of parents and friends saying goodbye until the next time.

The Class of '78' is known for the fun times we have had and also for the good deeds we have done. One such deed was the adoption of three children. On December 22, 1976, the appeal was made to the class. We needed five-hundred and forty dollars to become parents. Once again volunteers ran up and down the aisles of the auditorium carrying plastic bags, hats, buckets, or whatever was convenient for carrying the money collected. Mr. Brown was constantly bellowing, "We need more money." We made our goal with a grand total of five-hundred and seventy three dollars. Is that what kids are worth today?

We've got class! That's the saying on our class t-shirts. They were designed by Michael Rosenbaum in the same style as our buttons. One of the best days of our Junior year was when 1100 seventy-eighters came into assembly wearing blue and gold.

Be the Best of Whatever You Are

We all dream of great deeds and high positions, away from the pettiness and humdrum of ordinary life. Yet success is not occupying a lofty place or doing conspicuous work; it is being the best that is in you. Rattling around in too big a job is worse than filling a small one to overflowing. Dream, aspire by all means, but do not ruin the life you must lead by dreaming pipe dreams of the one you would like to lead. Make the most of what you have and are.

Keep Your Dreams

Keep your dreams — they're richer far
 Than the facts discovered are
 Do not seek all things to touch,
 Do not want to know too much
 Growing old, still play the child
 Keep some glory untiled
 What if clouds are mist and air?
 Still see ships sailing there
 What would life be if we knew

Only those things which are true?
 If the things of bad and good
 Were by all men understood
 Nature's hills and brooks and springs
 Would be catalogued as things

Are we wrong in all our teaching
That triumph lies in summit reaching
That all enjoyment earthy lies
In being proud and shrewd and wise
That to be rich is to be glad Since little else from life is had?

Should we not pen a different story
Concerning human peace and glory?
Should we not to our children tell
That true success is serving well
That all life's happiness depends
Less on wealth and more on friends?

The fact that happiness lies nearer
That youth may early guess or know
For all of us on earth below
That countless pleasures close at hand
Are strewn at every one's command?

voiced our opinions when they were played. To put it more bluntly, we BOOed them. We did have a fair election, however, and when the ballots were counted, "I Need You" finally won with "It" as a close second. With the theme song established, the Prom was official.

There were so many things to be done. A chairperson had to be chosen, a menu had to be decided upon, a necklace had to be designed, along with many other chores. Nancy Jacobs was chosen as chairperson, and with the help of a willing committee, The Junior Prom began to take shape. Students spent their lunch periods decorating the gym, and as a final touch, the Prom committee transformed a girls bathroom into Hawaii under a setting sun. We painted for three days, often going home with remnants of the blue sky superimposed on our clothes and bodies.

On May sixth, as I walked down the hallways of school, all I could hear was talk of long dresses, three-piece suits, and expensive restaurants. Our last big event as Juniors was only one day away!

At 8:00 p.m. on May seventh, the gym began to fill with Juniors. We had been in that gym hundreds of times before, but for some reason, everything looked different that night. The drab colorless walls were hidden by red and white streamers, while the people in the room were in clothes never worn there before. In the center of the room was a fountain fashioned by the Junior Prom committee to add a touch of glamour to the evening. Unexpectedly, it also provided a touch of comedy. One curious Junior, in order to get a closer look at the mechanisms of the fountain, leaned over the edge and what else?, fell in. He was a real splash!

Eight hundred people showed up for the 1978 Junior Prom — the biggest crowd ever at any George Washington Junior Prom. Again we had shown that we were the best.

One day early in April, I arrived at our first Junior Prom meeting, ready for action. We were all eager to begin planning and were full of confidence that our Junior Prom would be the best ever.

The first thing that we needed was a theme song for the Prom. We heard portions of the five nominated songs during one assembly. Some of the songs were far from what any of the seventy-eighters wanted, and we clearly Move up day was the day we had all been waiting for. At last, we would be the oldest class in the school the leaders, SENIORS! Traditionally, Move up day was a day on which everyone got dressed up, not quite the regal attire of the Prom, but definitely more than jeans and tee shirts. We had planned to spend the morning listening to speeches in Assembly as each important function of the school was handed down from the graduating students to the new seniors — us. Then, many of us assumed that we would follow in the footsteps of the classes before us and leave the school early to have lunch at some restaurant normally beyond our means. However, this year it was suggested that we stay in the building until the regular 1:45 dismissal. It was very strongly suggested. Most of us stayed.

For that last week of school, we were officially called Seniors, but it wasn't until we returned the next fall that I really felt that I was one. That September, we came to

George Washington as we had any other year but with a big difference. We were no longer the babies of the school, the forgotten class. We had no need to prove ourselves as we did when we were Sophomores. Or time as Juniors, the most agonizing year, the time when all we could think about was mountains of homework and the words, "Only one more year to go" kept resounding in our heads was finished. This time we were the Seniors.

So many things happened this last year. Once again we had a rollerskating party and the succession of football games. These old standbys were joined by our iceskating party, Senior Class Trip, and finally the Senior Prom.

Now we're graduating and looking back on my years of the school when I was a Freshman, it's hard to believe that I'd ever really felt such doubts about this place. I thought that I'd never get through the five years, and now I have. We all have. The Class of '78 has made it.

Freedom to Be Yourself

I believe in freedom, in man's right to be himself, to assert himself and to fight all those who try to prevent him from being himself. But freedom is more than the absence of violent oppression. It is more than "freedom from." It is "freedom to" the freedom to become independent, the freedom to be much, rather than to have much, or to use things and people

There is never a kinder, more gentle and more patient boy around. A pleasing personality and always ready to lend a hand to those in trouble were some of the attributes possessed by Richard.

It is most difficult to face each day without seeing him walk down the street and wave a hello to all who passed by him. It has been more than a privilege to know him and to realize that the world contained such a marvelous person.

Although we are all saddened by his loss, we can be happy for Richard, for he is now at peace which is what we all hope for and are striving to attain some

Principal

Dear Class of

The theme of your yearbook "The Course of Life" is quite appropriate to the time you have spent at George Washington High School. The high school years encompassed a time in which you grew from adolescence to adulthood. These years typify a time in which you were exposed to and interacted with a complex variety of feelings, attitudes, and behaviors. This period in your lives represented a time when you began to assume your role as a responsible adult.

In this portion of your life, most of you began to assume many of the critical decisions and responsibilities which were once the exclusive province of your parents. And in your assumption of these responsibilities, these decisions you began to control and determine a great deal of your future. As Robert Louis Stevenson said, "Everybody, soon or late, sits down to a banquet of consequence."

It is my hope that we of the staff of George Washington High School have served and guided you well so that your "banquet of consequences" represents fulfillment, success, and happiness. Please accept my best wishes in all future endeavor.

Paul A. Wacker

To the Class of 1978

Congratulations and best wishes to you for your future success as caring and concerned individuals. Remember your days at Washington, the finest high school in Philadelphia at the present time. As you proceed up the ladder of successful accomplishment, may your feats reflect honor on George Washington High and its staff of dedicated men and women. Good luck.

To the Class of 1978

I would like to take this opportunity to congratulate the members of the class of 1978 for earning the distinction of being one of the finest classes to graduate from our high school. I have had the privilege and pleasure of working with the sponsor, the officers, and members of this outstanding class during the past several years. You have brought great distinction to our school as a result of the very excellent way in which you have conducted yourselves in all of your activities.

I trust that you will use the cognitive, social and cultural knowledge and skills that you have learned not only in our school, but in other schools to the benefit of your community and mankind. I urge you to give of yourself and share your many talents and fine attributes with others. You will find that this will not only be beneficial and therapeutic to you, but will assist our society by having capable persons like yourselves sincerely and genuinely contribute to solving the many complex problems and issues currently plaguing our society.

Again, you have my sincerest congratulations and best wishes for your outstanding achievement and cooperation in experiencing many successful endeavors at our school. As a class, I wish each and every one of you the greatest luck, success, happiness and achievement that life can offer you throughout the many years.

Alvin Vaughn

Principals

To the Class of 1978

You will always be of special significance to me for we "arrived" at George Washington High School together you in your Sophomore year as the official class of 1978 and Barbara Braman as Vice Principal-4

My first introduction to the school was at your class assembly and you treated me with kindness and respect. In looking back, I am certain that it was your reception of me on that October morning in 1975 which assured me that Washington was, indeed, a fine place to work and I was truly fortunate to be a part of it.

The graduation of the Class of 1978 finds me with mixed emotions. I am thrilled with your growth from eager Sophomores to responsible young adults and I am filled with confidence that as you move along in "The Course of Life" you will continue to successfully meet and accept all of its challenges with determination and integrity. Yet, I feel a great deal of sadness for I know that neither Washington nor I will ever be quite the same again without The Class of 1978.

All of my best wishes are with you.

Barbara Braman

Dr. Sheldon Pave

Ten years ago, while running for President, Robert Kennedy often quoted George Bernard Shaw by stating to the people who would hear him speak, "You see things as they are and you say why, but I dream things that never were and say why not." Apply these words and their message individually to each of your lives and to your hopes and aspirations. Each one of you has the greatest gift possible, a thinking, feeling mind. Use it to dream, to wonder, and to become what you will.

Dear kindly staff of teachers
It's you we now address
About the many failures
Which cause our minds unrest

To those who taught us History
The dates and more
The dates are still a mystery
And the essays we abhor

To those who taught us numbers Intelligence we lack
For we'd be incompetent bunglers
If only you'd take

To those who taught us in the gym
And caused our bodies pain
Although you showed much vigor and vim
You left us rather lame

To those who taught us everyday Spanish, French, and such Most lately we now can say
That we don't know too much

To those who taught us science
Though complacently we sat
We say now in defiance
We still think the world's flat

To those who call roll every morn
To let us state
We've been here since we were born
We always arrived late

To those who taught us English
We're with you our plight
And nothing rhymes with English
And it's clear that we can't write

As now it's time that we depart
From Washington we fly
We know you've given us the start
Thank you and Goodbye

Legend XIV

Editor-in-chief

Legend XIV is soon to become the most valuable memory of the avenues we've traveled through Washington. Though it is impossible to portray all facets of high school life in this legend, the pictures and story connect the fragments of our freshman, sophomore, and junior as well as senior years. One can view the opening of our chrysalis through the entire evolution of our true spirit. The yearbook staff has woven a path which will help to bring alive these memories. It is up to all of us to forge from stone to stone, bridging enough of the chasm to gather for ourselves all that has come to pass along the way. As you amble down memory lane, it is our hope that on these pages the excitement, achievement, pleasure, fun, love, laughter, warmth, spirit, and even the sadness shared by the class of '78 will remind you of our course of life.

As graduation will soon be upon us, we will each embark upon a new journey. We will have new bridges to traverse and many more challenges to meet. It is my fondest wish that everyone enjoys a bright, successful, and happy future.
